

“Clinton: From farming to commuting 1870-1940” by William P. McDermott

This book tells the story about the population change over the critical 70-year period when town residency dropped 40% before recovering after many years. Bill covers all the contributing factors and their impact on farmers and their wives and families. Occupations, wages, community events, and businesses are well covered. Notably, he departs from the generalization approach of other authors by citing the experiences of specific Clinton families during this period. Many images and illustrations included.

Year:	2019	Price:	$15.00
Pages:	169	Shipping:	$2.50
Size:	6" x 9" softcover		